The Path is Everywhere

with Matt Licata

June 15-18

During our time together, we'll step into a very alive and provocative, yet nourishing and safe, vessel of healing, wisdom, and love. Over the course of the weekend, we'll explore therapeutic, somatic, and meditative approaches to psychological growth, emotional healing, and spiritual transformation, and consider how we might approach these mysteries within the context of our lives exactly as they are.

The weekend is open to anyone interested in healing, spirituality, mindfulness, psychotherapy, meditation, yoga, opening the heart, and the mystery of awakening to our true nature. We'll meditate together (no experience required), explore what an integral approach to spirituality and healing might look like for those of us active in the world, and have plenty of time for questions, sharing, and discussion.

Weekly Spiritual Services

Sunrise Ranch is the headquarters for an international ministry, Emissaries of Divine Light. We hold spiritual services on both Sunday mornings and Wednesday evenings each week. Our Sunday service is a range of musical, dramatic and poetic performances along with the ministering of inspiring messages of Truth and Love. The Sunday service is offered streaming on Facebook and Zoom as well as live and open to the public at 11am in our 400-seat geodesic dome auditorium. Wednesday evening service is a more intimate time within the community with a variety of different speakers exploring spiritual themes. These are audio recorded and available to listen to online.

Thank you for the part you play in the ongoing spiritual regeneration of humanity.

Poetry Corner – The Initiate

Many points of initiation found on the path of life
For some to be passed requires moving through strife
Thriving and striving to peel back the folds
Removing the layers to discover what it holds
The peaceful stillness felt only after the storm

The tempest tearing away the mask that was worn
Behind, beneath and below all of the busy facades
The horse growing weary from all the circles it trods
Suddenly seven rays illuminate the new coming dawn
And the fog of illusion in the maze, almost now gone

This soul I possess, quite like a fine gem Is not mine at all but that which I AM

A peace does rest in the consciousness of "I"

Allowing me to be free without needing to try.

Dissension – Friend or Foe?

By Heather Ryan

Maybe every moment in history NEEDS these seemingly opposing forces. Maybe we need the young to forge a path forward and break out of old ruts. Maybe we need the balance and understanding that can be gained from a lifelong pursuit of consciousness. Maybe we need opposing forces in politics, religion, business, education, finance, and at home in order to finally see that we are all part of one gorgeous, infuriating, ridiculous, amazing thing, and we all have parts to play at different stages and from different points of view. After all, dissension provides diversity, and a diversity of amateur inputs has been shown to solve problems more quickly and with better results than expert agreement. Maybe dissension is the grease on the wheels and the fire in the belly that facilitates and even empowers the All, moving from conflict toward cohesion, from confusion toward creation.

My Observations on Life, 76 Years In

By Jerry Kvasnicka

The first thing I do upon awakening is sit on the side of my bed, lift up my eyes and repeat: "Behold, I make all things new. I would bless everything that comes to me this day." Then I immediately turn on the radio and begin listening to the latest world news on National Public Radio. My burning passion in life is "the spiritual regeneration of humanity." One of the ways I go about this work is by sending out a radiant blessing of love into and through every news story, even those describing intense suffering and death. Through the subconscious channels of connection that I (and all of us) have with the whole body of humanity, this blessing is received at some level by everyone involved in the news event, everyone involved in communicating the event (the media) and everyone hearing or reading about the event.
